Education and community empowerment: Swiss Father Ernst Waser's social work in Flores

Ambassador Yvonne Baumann, Ruben Chirino Ochoa, Steve Tharakan, Father Ernst Waser and the exclusively female staff of the carpenter's workshop

On 27 October 2016, Ambassador Yvonne Baumann visited several social projects in Werang and Wangkung in the island of Flores. In a tidy high school, Santu Klaus Kuwu, located in a remote area, all of 500 students learn German from the beginning of their education. What is more, a course center and boarding houses cater for underprivileged children and youths. The institutions are part of the comprehensive life-long work of Swiss Father Ernst Waser working towards upgrading community livelihood through provision of school facilities, scholarships for deprived students and community enhancing courses. Project related workshops, encompassing a carpentry, a water supply center and an animal breeding facility, have generated more than 100 jobs for young men and women in rural areas.
